

COLLISION ON YORK STREET INJURES FOUR; 2 ARE SERIOUS

Four persons were injured, three of them so seriously as to require their admissions to the Annie M. Warner hospital, in a collision on York street a short distance west of the Rock creek bridge, about 11 o'clock Saturday evening. Two of the victims remained in a serious condition today at the hospital.

The most seriously injured is Milton H. Epley, aged about 55 years, Gettysburg R. 5, operator of one of the two machines that figured in the collision. He was reported to be semi-conscious today at the hospital, where he is suffering from a fracture of the lower jaw, lacerations of the chin and neck and internal injuries.

Epley's only companion, Arnold Walker, 57, near Hunterstown, Gettysburg R. 4, also suffered a fracture of the lower jaw. He has multiple lacerations of the lower lip and lacerations of the back of the head.

Removed to Hospital in Ambulance
The third hospital patient from the crash is Mrs. Bessie McSherry, who resides in the first block of West High street. Her left arm is broken, she suffered concussion of the brain, a severe laceration of the forehead and nose and bruises. Today her condition was said to be improved and was not regarded as serious.

William L. Brubaker, 50, 20 North Washington street, a railroad engineer, was the driver of the car in which Mrs. McSherry was a passenger. He escaped with lacerations and contusions of the head and was allowed to leave the hospital after receiving treatment following the accident.

All were removed from the scene of the accident to the hospital in the Gettysburg ambulance.

Borough Officer Charles W. Culp, who conducted an investigation of the accident, stated today that he expects to file a charge—probably that of failing to yield half of the highway to oncoming traffic—against Epley as a result of the collision. Epley's condition has not yet permitted questioning by police at the hospital.

Cars Badly Damaged

Both cars involved in the accident were badly damaged and had to be towed from the scene. State motor policemen assisted Officer Culp in clearing the highway of the wrecked cars.

The borough officer's investigation showed that the Epley car had been traveling east and Brubaker's machine in the opposite direction when the collision occurred.

Epley's car, apparently being operated on the wrong side of the highway, according to police reports, struck Brubaker's car as the local man swerved toward the center of the highway in an effort to avoid a head-on collision. The front of the Epley machine struck the right side of the Brubaker car close to its front end. The cars stopped almost side by side on the highway.

The impact nearly demolished the Epley car. Damage to the Brubaker machine was estimated at about $200.

Interior of Jacobs' Store At Hammers' Hall Burns; Loss Estimated at $3,000

While Luther E. Jacobs and his family attended morning worship services at St. James' Lutheran church here Sunday flames were discovered in the rear of his "Community Pure Food store" at Hammers' hall along the hard-surfaced road leading from the Lincoln highway to Knoxlyn. The cause of the blaze has not been determined.

The interior of the store on the west side of the double frame building was badly damaged, causing almost total loss of a $2,000 stock of general goods in the store. The rear of the living quarters on the east side also was damaged by flames, while the front rooms and the entire second floor suffered from smoke and water. Damage, which was estimated to be in excess of $3,000, is partly covered by insurance.

Neighbors See Smoke

The flames were discovered shortly after 10 o'clock by neighbors. George W. Trimmer, Munnasburg, who was chatting with F. M. Wisler on the front porch of the latter's home, almost directly across the road from the Jacobs property, said he saw smoke coming from a chimney at the rear of the store and then smoke began to pour from beneath the roof. Going to the building to investigate, the men found the rear part of the store in flames.

A call was sent to the Fairfield fire company from the home of Mrs. J. B. Adams, a short distance west of the blazing store. The firemen responded quickly and laid hose lines to a well on a property east of the store and later to a well on the Diehl property to the west. Both wells were pumped dry by the time the fire, also battled by chemicals carried by the Fairfield and Gettysburg firemen, was extinguished. A call for the local firemen was sent when it was feared that the flames might envelop the entire building and spread to another house less than a hundred feet to the east. Preparations were made to lay a line of hose to Marsh creek, but the fire was brought under control before that became necessary.

Beatrice Quiggle, York, will be charged before Justice of the Peace F. E. Coulson with ignoring a stop sign in York Springs, Sunday.

John K. O'Donnell, Wall, Allegheny county, paid Justice of the Peace R. M. Straley, New Oxford, $10 fine and costs for speeding 60 miles an hour on Saturday night.

Harner J. Beggs, Pittsburgh, paid a fine before Justice Straley for passing on a railroad crossing, Saturday.

Earl J. Lauer, rear of 247 Locust street, Hanover, is to be charged with having made an improper pass in the face of oncoming traffic, east of here on the Lincoln highway Sunday.

Members of the local company, summoned shortly before 11 o'clock, made use of smoke masks to enter the second floor of the store building.

Neighbors who quickly gathered helped carry furniture and other personal property from the dwelling quarters.

Mr. Jacobs, who had been called from the local church and who had arrived at the scene of the fire only a short time after the Fairfield firemen, said that he had been in the storeroom between 8 and 8:30 o'clock for some groceries for a neighbor and had noticed nothing amiss at that time. He said there has been no fire in the furnace or any stove on that side of the building for weeks.

Mr. Jacobs has conducted the general store at the location for more than 10 years. The building was remodeled when he took it over. A store has been located at that site for more than 40 years and was formerly known as Hammers' store.

About three years ago a fire caused minor damage at the Jacobs store. The fire occurred during the night and was discovered by Mr. Jacobs before serious damage was caused. That blaze was attributed to defective wiring.

Sunday's alarm was the first the local company has answered since July 13, when the home of Paul B. Shealer on the west slope of Seminary ridge was destroyed. An alarm was received the evening of July 20 from the Oyler tire shop on York street, but the services of the firemen were not required there.

Another in a series of Elks' birthday parties will be held Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock in the lodge home on Chambersburg street. The party will celebrate 31 birthday anniversaries of lodge members occurring in July and August.

AMERICANS IN SHANGHAI ARE PUT ON SHIPS

ried 200 Americans—many of them refugees—to the homebound liner President Taft, waiting off the Whangpoo's mouth.

Shanghai was surrounded by the 15-mile front of the Chinese-Japanese war, which raged through its fourth day here, and United States authorities ordered all their women and children out.

Three hundred fifty more are to leave tomorrow for Manila on the Dollar liner President McKinley. A like number will go Wednesday on the President Jefferson.

Refugees Go To Manila.
The big liner President Hoover, bringing United States marine reinforcements from Manila, can carry about 1,000 American refugees from Shanghai about the end of the week. The Red Cross at Manila is preparing for their reception.

The fiercest land fighting of the battle for Shanghai roared tonight along the whole front around Shanghai and north of the Yangtze river. Starshells from both Chinese and Japanese lines kept the sky almost continuously alight.

Most bitterly contested sector was along the Shanghai-Woosung railway, running north from the city. There the Chinese army apparently was throwing a desperate attack against the Japanese lines, trying to reach the fortress-like headquarters of the Japanese naval forces on the northern border of Japanese-held Hongkew.

The Japanese threw their full land strength into this fray.

As a massed fleet of 43 Chinese warplanes brought the conflict to the heart of Shanghai again today, Americans began packing for flight safety points. Officials then decided the evacuation was imperative.

More Marines Land.
One hundred additional United States Marines and sailors were landed from the flagship Augusta to augment the 1,050 marines already patrolling Shanghai's international settlement and to cover the evacuation.

Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander-in-chief of the United States Asiatic fleet, ordered two American destroyers to steam at top speed from Tientsin to Shanghai, possibly to convoy passenger ships carrying American refugees.

British authorities announced 2,061 British women and children would be taken from Shanghai on the liners Rajputana tomorrow and Empress of Asia Thursday. Other nations moved similarly to save their country people.

While Chinese and Japanese continued the fighting, Shanghai's foreign communities—including British—remained in peril of repetitions of Saturday's tragic bombings. Then more than 1,000, including 3 Americans, were killed and some 1,200 wounded when Chinese bombs plunged into the heart of the international areas.

Indications were the fighting would increase in extent and ferocity.

REBELS AIM AT SANTANDER IN NEW OFFENSIVE

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

With Spanish insurgents in Southern Santander Province, Aug. 16 (AP)—Two thousand insurgent soldiers smashed into the mountain jaws of Venta Neuva today on their way to Reinaosa and, far beyond it, the city of Santander.

It was the third day of the renewed offensive to sweep government troops out of Santander province, just as General Francisco Franco's men had conquered the Basque region to the east.

At dusk Sunday Franco's four divisions moving north along the Burgos-Santander road had penetrated far into the notch of Venta Neuva, despite the withering fire of government machine gunners in concrete pillboxes and trenches far above.

Franco's fighters were eight miles north of Soncillo on the Santander road, and fighting at an altitude of about 3,200 feet. Officers said 500 men had been lost in the fighting prior to the Venta Neuva assault, and that 500 Government troops had been captured.

For the second consecutive day it looked on at the advance. Once a shell landed only a few yards ahead of the car in which I was seated, wrecking the left front tire and wounding two soldiers who were answering a question as to directions. One was hit in the eye and the other in the stomach.

In the woods back of the tiny village of Montoto a group of insurgents was taken completely by surprise when a hidden machine gun began to crackle.

Men spun around and fell. When the machine gun had been silenced, the wounded were carried back to gray tents flying Red Cross flags. There were 45 victims in all.

A dark thin man in his forties went hysterically on a stretcher. His left arm and his chest were banded—one bullet had broken both his arm and some ribs.

"All I want is revenge!" he cried. "Make me well, doctor! I'll go back and kill 800 of them!"

CONGRESS GETS DOWN TO WORK TO END SESSION

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP)—Administration leaders, reluctantly junking wage-hour legislation until next year, buckled down today to jam three key measures through Congress before adjournment.

They conceded they could not pry loose the controversial labor standards bill from the House rules committee and that even if they could, members were in no mood to remain for a long floor fight.

This decision left these measures on the program, which probably can be completed Saturday night or early next week:

1. A bill to seal tax loopholes, against which little opposition has been recorded. It is an outgrowth of the inquiry into tax dodging recommended by President Roosevelt. The House agreed to debate it today, and the Senate will take it up Wednesday.

2. A low-cost housing program, approved by the administration and already passed by the Senate. A House committee has revised it drastically in preparation for debate Wednesday.

3. A deficiency appropriation bill, end-of-session routine. It provides for necessary federal expenditures which developed after regular appropriation bills were passed.

In addition, the Senate must vote on the Supreme court nomination of Senator Black (D-Ala.) and the House will consider a Senate-approved resolution to make farm price legislation the first order of business at the next session.

A number of minor bills remained on the calendar to clutter up the adjournment rush, but Democratic chieftains were ready to discard any which might give any material hindrance.

The only item aside from Black's nomination which has caused any serious controversy is the housing bill. The Senate inserted many restrictions. The House committee liberalized some of these but made others even more stringent.

REV. G. E. SNYDER DESCRIBES TWO BIBLICAL 'FACES'

The Rev. George E. Snyder preached on the theme, "Two Immortal Portraits," at the Mt. Tabor United Brethren church on Sunday. The Scripture reading was taken from Luke 18:9-14.

The sermon, in part, follows: "And He spoke this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that, they were righteous and despised others. A fruitful study is our Lord's adaptation of his teaching to the needs of the particular audience. It is a great lesson to all. What is it they need?"

"When He spoke to the cultured Nicodemus He told him clearly that nothing could be done until he was born again. When He preached to the tired suffering multitudes, He stretched out His arms to them and said, 'Come unto me all ye that are heavy laden and I will give you rest.' What could they want so much as rest? When He preached to the publican and sinners, His text was the Good Shepherd who leaves the ninety and nine to find the one sheep that had strayed, and the boundless joy in heaven over one sinner that has repented.

He needed not that any should testify to him of man, for He knew what was in man.

"To bring His teaching clearly forth and to drive it home, our Lord does not resort to exhortation. He paints a portrait. Here are two photographs that stick in the memory, indelibly.

"If Pharisees were all dead there would be no need of preaching on this parable. If the Pharisees were all dead then a part of our Lord's teaching is out of date. But if anything is clear, it is that the line of the Pharisees had not died out and that the spirit of the Pharisee is a sad element of human nature that is continually carried along.

"The figure stands out on the canvas, he is a goodly sight, a man of noble presence he takes his stand boldly in the presence of God and man and none can speak against him. He is a man of good report, honest, generous and gives the tenth of his income. Religious beyond what is required of him; fasts twice a week; upright to fellow men, and a good holy man.

"If the man saw no profit in living as he does he would turn to be unjust, and adulterous. It is nothing but self interest that keeps him at it, the same self interest moves another to cheat and steal. Take of that moral shackle that his education has put on and you will find the corrupt evil, unclean soul in all its nakedness.

"Fellow-Christians, the Teacher is putting this picture before us for no other reason than that we shall ask: AM I LIKE THAT? If all conventionalities, habits and usages we are accustomed to should be stripped from us, how good should we really be? It is a searching thought and an humbling one. It is meant to be to that end the picture is painted.

"The other man who prayed in the temple was a known sinner. We know nothing of his life, but that he belonged to a class that was notorious. Let us suppose that he was honest man. But there was this immense difference between him and the other. He had not succeeded in deceiving himself. He had looked into his heart and what he saw there made him cry with such panic as Peter at the lake and later after the betrayal, 'God be merciful to me a sinner.'

"No man knows Christ, no man can know Christ, no one can know what righteousness is, no one can be right with God until he has had that same awful terrifying, humiliating look into the darkness of his own heart that the publican had in the hour when he sought to raise his eyes to God and could not.

"He knew himself then. In that moment he had learned to know himself in a way that he never could forget. He knew himself so well that he never again could trust in himself that he was righteous. And thus he took what was for him and for us the only path to life; he threw himself upon the Almighty, All Merciful God and went down to his house justified," the Rev. Mr. Snyder concluded.

A'S WIN THREE STRAIGHT FROM NEW YORK YANKS

Did you ever see a worm turning?

They're doing it all over the place these days. Washington's wallowing Senators are breezing along on an eight-game winning streak. Pittsburgh's pathetic Pirates are plodding back toward third place in the National League. And Cincinnati's collapsible Reds have just made the high-and-mighty Chicago Cubs holler "uncle."

But for the championship of the society of turning worms, we give you Connie Mack's collegiate collection of Athletics.

They're either a very brave band of youngsters, or they've been fooling everybody for a long time. Every other outfit in the league falls apart at mere mention of the Yankees. But Connie Mack's crew looked them in the eye over the week-end and proceeded to take three straight.

Young Edgar Smith completed the sweep of the series with a seven-hitter Sunday.

The breaks made it easy for the A's. Joe DiMaggio committed two errors that set up three unearned runs for the Quaker City combination.

Despite the victory, however, the Yankees maintained their top-sided ten-game lead in the pennant chase. Since the second-place Detroit Tigers kicked away a six-run lead, and lost, 9-7, to the Browns.

Over in the National League, the jinx-loaded Chicago Cubs were wallowed thoroughly by the Reds and lost a doubleheader, 13-6 and 9-8.

As a result, their league lead was cut to four games as the second-place Giants registered a 5-3 decision over the Phillies.

Washington belted the Red Sox twice, 9-3 and 8-3, to climb into fifth place and drop the Bostonians down to sixth by trouncing Cleveland, 5-3 and 3-2, in a bargain bill.

Paul Waner found St. Louis pitching easy meat and the Pirates picked up a twin win, 8-4 and 4-0, to make it three straight over the Cards. The Brooklyn and the Boston Bees split, the Dodgers winning the opener, 7-5, and Danny MacFayden tossing a three-hitter for a 9-1 Boston win in the night-cap.

Midway Downs Gettysburg to Complete Perfect Season; Playoffs to Start Saturday

A three-run rally in the eighth inning enabled Midway to nose out the Gettysburg furniture company baseball team in a county league game Saturday afternoon at Midway, 4-2, and complete its season undefeated. Midway won eighteen straight league games without a single setback.

For seven innings it looked as though the locals would snap the Midway streak, Gettysburg holding a 2-1 advantage going into the last of the eighth inning. However, L. Weaver singled, W. Coffman doubled, an error saved M. Grove, while a single by N. Weaver topped off the rally which produced three runs.

Johnny Slaybaugh toiled for Gettysburg and turned in a fine performance. Ken Knox led the local assault with three singles. L. Weaver and W. Coffman each collected three hits for the victors.

A pair of home runs by Dale Bream and another by Singley featured Cashtown's 15-1 triumph over York Springs at Cashtown. Shindler pitched for the winners, with P. Bream catching. Trimmer, Bowers and Kennedy worked on the mound for York Springs.

At Wierman hurried Arendtsville to an easy 8-2 triumph over Bendersville at Arendtsville. Routson was the losing pitcher.

The third place Fairfield outfit nosed out Bethlehem 8-6 at Fairfield. Robert twirled for Fairfield.

New Oxford handed Bonneauville a 5-1 reverse at Bonneauville. Blevins was the winning hurler, while Chrimer and Shanebrook pitched for the losers.

A meeting of league officials will be held this week to lay plans for the playoffs to determine the league champion. Midway, Gettysburg, Fairfield and Arendtsville will participate. The first of the games will be played Saturday.

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP).—Administration forces, ignoring growing demands for hearings, endeavoring to push the Supreme court nomination of Senator Black (Democrat, Alabama) through the judiciary committee today and confirm it in the Senate tomorrow.

The overwhelmingly Democratic committee was called together this morning to vote on the nomination, approved by a sub-committee Friday less than 24 hours after it was submitted by President Roosevelt.

Two powerful influences were working in favor of swift approval—senatorial courtesy and the stampede for adjournment of Congress this week. Even reference of the Black nomination to committee was a breach of custom providing for immediate confirmation of a Senator to a federal post.

Hearings would result in delay, and congressional leaders had their followers keyed to adjourn by the end of the week. Democratic Leader Barkley, forecasting confirmation tomorrow, said he expected only a few hours' debate.

Despite these personal factors, a Republican demand for delay was increasing. Opposition Senators said it was backed by telegraphic requests for hearings from many parts of the country.

In the committee the request for hearings was led by Senator Austin, of Vermont, acting Republican leader in the absence of Senator McNary, of Oregon. On the floor it was backed by other Republicans, including Senator Bridges, of New Hampshire.

Bridges told newspapermen that if the committee approved the nomination, it was likely an effort would be made on the senate floor to recommend it for hearings, and that the motion would be thoroughly debated. Black's friends contended that hearings were unnecessary in view of his long service in the Senate.

Bridges replied that hearings were held on the nomination of Chief Justice Hughes even though he previously had served on the court and long had been in the public eye.

Nanking, Aug. 16 (AP).—A little Chinese woman stands today with her husband in the path of Japan's advance into China.

She is Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, Wellesley-educated wife of the head of the Chinese government and army, and in her own right, commander-in-chief of the nation's air forces.

More than anyone she has been responsible for building up the Chinese air corps. Until today it numbers 550 planes with 15 flying bases scattered throughout the country.

Squadrons of Japanese planes opened a campaign Sunday to destroy all bases of their airforce within 250 miles of war-torn Shanghai.

Madame Chiang declared that Saturday's air-bombing tragedy in Shanghai was due to bombs being loosed accidentally from Chinese army planes damaged by Japanese anti-aircraft fire.

In a telegram to Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., in Shanghai, she said her husband, "shocked and grieved," had ordered an investigation of the holocaust.

Mrs. Roosevelt, a visitor in Shanghai, telegraphed Madame Chiang urging, "as a sincere friend," that steps be taken to prevent a repetition of the tragedy.

Observers have credited the rapid growth of Chinese military aviation in the last eight years to the executive ability and far-sighted labors of the country's first lady.

Two years after her marriage to Chiang Kai-Shek in 1927 she became convinced that the Generalissimo could keep abreast of the rapidly-shifting scenes of Chinese politics spread over a vast area only by means of rapid transportation.

Her answer was a private airplane. From that her interest grew and turned toward the development of Chinese commercial and military aviation, particularly the latter.

MATTER SPURS HUNT FOR SIX SOVIET FLIERS

Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 16 (AP).—Jimmy Mattern, noted American aviator got ready to leave at dawn today in his speedy, twin-motored monoplane to search the Arctic wastes for six missing Russian fliers.

Mattern arrived Sunday night after a non-stop flight from Oakland, California, to join in the search for Sigismund Levanevsky, Soviet act pilot, and his five companions.

The American flier said he will traverse the 148th meridian in quest of a clue to the fate of the Russians, who disappeared Friday on a 4,000-mile flight from Moscow to Fairbanks.

The first day's flight will take Mattern over the ice floes of the Arctic, where the four-motored Russian plane may have been forced down. He said he would return to Fairbanks tonight without attempting to land en route and will be ready to continue his search as long as hope remains.

"Hank" Jones, Mattern's mechanic, will accompany him in his rescue mission. Clear weather was reported over most of the route the mercy plane will fly today.

Meantime, attempts will be made to coordinate the search by establishing contact with Russian rescue planes flying from Moscow.

Joe Crosson, famed Alaska "mercy pilot," who has directed the search for the last three days, said today that if the Russian plane landed in Alaska a systematic search should find it. However, he added:

"A rescue in the arctic regions would be much more difficult."

Leaving Oakland, California, Sunday Mattern dashed here non-stop at an average speed better than 190 miles per hour to help in the hunt for the lost Russians.

In 1933, Levanevsky flew into the wastes of Siberia to rescue Mattern, who crashed on an attempted world flight and nearly died before aid reached him.

Soviet planes and two ice-breakers were en route to emergency bases near the pole in an attempt to rescue the six fliers before the bitter Arctic winter, already setting in, closes down.

Levanevsky's huge plane crossed the pole early Friday but soon afterward reported trouble in one of its four motors. Paint radio signals ute to the talent, industry and high character of Mr. McPherson. This will give high satisfaction throughout the county, as he has earned a high reputation in the councils of the nation and our friends abroad have been constantly urging upon us his re-nomination to a position he so much adorns. It is done; and his triumphant election is certain. We congratulate him and his county on the result.

Shocking Accident.—Mr. Levi Beard, of Franklin township met his death in a distressing manner on last Friday week. He was engaged in raking hay, and drove into a nest of hornets who immediately made an attack upon the horse. The animal became maddened with the stings, and in his efforts to extricate him from the gears, Mr. Beard was so severely kicked as to cause his death in twenty-four hours afterwards.Died.—On Saturday last in this place, Mrs. Catharine Minnigh, wife of Mr. Ephraim H. Minnigh, aged 27 years and 13 days.On Wednesday last, in Cumberland township, Mr. Samuel Linn, in his 64th year.
In Berlin, Ill., of diarrhoea, contracted in camp, Mr. David R. Scott, formerly of this county, a member of Company O, 6th Regt., Ill. Vol., aged about 24 years.A Suspected Spy.—Some two or three weeks ago, a young man, a German, of rather genteel appearance, arrived here in the cars, and remained here a day or two. He had his head bandaged, his arm in a sling and walked with a crutch—all his injuries received in battle, and had just been released from Richmond, where he had been a prisoner. He went to Emmitsburg, where he had friends, he said. We learned that some suspicious circumstances in his conduct there led to his arrest, and it was found that he was not wounded at all, that all was a sham, and that a map of roads in Harbaugh's valley had been found on his person. He was held, therefore, as a spy. This is the version of the story as given to us. How much, if any, is true, we cannot say.

A LOVER OVER ALL

IT IS not easy to love everybody, nor is it easy to love all of anybody. But there is something lovable about every human being.

There is also more to love about most people than there is not to love. A love over all, with a certain blindness to the faults or failings of one, is the most generous and wisest attitude to adopt. It makes one happier, at any rate, to hunt for the good in people and forget that there is bad implanted in them.

There are all sorts of hobbies that one can put his energies to, but none more profitable than the one of hunting for the things to love in another human being. Hunting for the faults may be easier with many of us, but it doesn't pay any dividends!

The scriptural admonition is to love one's neighbor as oneself. This is quite difficult, as many of us have learned by many an experience, nevertheless a love over all in such cases brings its own rich reward.

A love that is over all smoothes most of the unpleasant in life, as well as in people. Those who are forever seeing the unhappy and unpleasant in others, are usually blind to the same failings in themselves. Their love doesn't spread around because it is too heavily concentrated in thoughtlessness and selfishness. The pity is that such a state is so rarely apparent to such a one.

To cultivate a love over all is to build for happiness. It follows as the night the day.

We are each lucky human beings in many ways. If we could count up these ways often we would complain and criticize less. We would see a bigger and happier world about us—and a very beautiful one at that. We would see good in everything and in everybody. We would find the full meaning of this love over all.

FLAME TRAIL

Chapter 53
Confession

When Zeke Farley and his companions rounded a curve and came to the designated place, they stopped short with surprise at the sight of the extraordinary group waiting to receive them.

Stepping in front of the girls, Ted told his story.

"I brought Josh Hastings along in the hopes he'd confess," he ended. "But I reckon I can convince a jury without him."

A groan from Josh Hastings brought all eyes to him, as a convulsive shudder shook his frame, and tiny flecks of foam appeared at his lips.

"He's had another stroke!" Kay exclaimed. "Quick! Get him off!"

In a thrice they had lifted him to the ground. Kay took sudden command of the situation, and motioned them all a few paces away as Josh Hastings' eyes opened. She knelt beside him.

Just In Time

"You're going to die, Josh Hastings," she declared solemnly, her eyes holding him with hypnotic intensity, "and Ruth will be left all alone. If you will tell the truth about Scrap Johnson's death, I swear that I'll take care of her."

Josh Hastings' eyes wandered from Kay to Zeke Farley and Tom Runyon behind her, then to Ted. A sullen triumph gleamed through their glazed terror.

"I won't talk!" he declared, with sudden vindictive strength. "Then Ruth must be alone in the world and fend for herself!" Kay's voice was inexorable and gave no quarter.

"Damn you! Have it your own way, then!" His eyes clouded as a convulsive tremor shook him. Kay beckoned Zeke Farley closer.

"Go on!"

I killed Scrap Johnson, because he pulled a dirty trick on me! Josh Hastings gasped out his confession. "And I framed Gaynor because I hate him, and I intended to have him prove a murderer to you. And what's more, I burned your ranch house, because . . ." His face contracted in a horrible grimace, and he fell back.

Zeke Farley sprang to him, and put a hand on his heart. After a moment of breathless silence, he turned to Kay.

"You were just in time," he announced. "He's dead."

With an inarticulate cry, Kay rose to her feet and flung herself into Ted's arms.

Tom Runyon, who had been watching the whole dramatic scene from a distance, swung into his saddle. He silently pushed past the group on the trail, and without a backward look, headed down a clear Water Basin. For a long moment, his horse's hoof beats were the only sounds to break the silence.

Sunrise

With sudden radiance, the first rays of the sun caught the tops of the peaks, announcing the arrival of a new day. To the southeast, a heavy cloud of smoke smothered the ridges, but above and ahead of them, all was clear.

"That is the past and the future!" Marion spoke in an awed whisper, as she looked from the obscurity of the eastern ridges to the bright promise of the western peaks, towering above them.

Kay raised her head from Ted's shoulder, but before following Marion's look her eyes anxiously sought Zeke Farley. He nodded a sympathetic assent to her unspoken question.

"He's free, all right!" He motioned his men to take Josh Hastings' body and go ahead. A grin of satisfaction spread over his face as Kay slipped her hand through Ted's arm and faced him with radiantly happy eyes.

"How about coming back with me?" He cocked a quizzical eye at Marion. "I'll send up a couple of cayuses for those two. I reckon they won't mind waiting!"

"I'd love to! I want to go back as soon as possible." Marion eagerly accepted his suggestion, and before Kay or Ted could remonstrate, she kissed her hand to them and sprang up before Zeke Farley.

A moment later, and they had followed the rest around a bend in the trail, leaving Kay and Ted alone with the sunrise.

"Sweetheart!" Ted held Kay away for a moment, as he gazed at the bright glory of her hair in the morning sunlight that now included them in its golden radiance.

"Marion is right! The future is ours!"

He pulled her gently to him, and for a breathless interval, future and past were forgotten in the magic of the present.

HOME COOKING
"Some day," said she, "when you can be
Once more the man who married me;When you have tired of evil men,
You may come back to me again.
And thus they parted. She to shift
As best she could and he to drift.Five years went by. A warden had
A trusty, not considered bad;
Caught with some others forced to roam
A thousand miles or more from home.And jailed for having pried ajar
The doorway of a railroad car.Paroled at last he came to town, Found work and here he settled down.And two years more went by as he Labored and waited patiently
And then at dinner (truth I write)
He said: "The soup is good tonight!"On came the meat. "It's years,"
said he,
"Since food has seemed so good to me!"Smacking his lips he gave a cry:
"Oh, this is home-made apple pie!"
And then he heard the woman say:
"A new cook came to work today.""Perhaps, since food like this appeals,
She'd like to hear you praise her meals.Step to the kitchen door and say
How much you've liked her work today."And out he went. (How strange is life!)
There in the kitchen stood his wife!
(Copyright, 1937, Edgar A. Guest)THE ANCIENT RULE
The rule is old but still it stays
The one achievement mortals praise:For others round about to do
What you would have them do for you.In this way always humans claim
A happy and an honored name.Nor art, nor strength, nor skill bestow
The love such gracious persons know;

Men to the topmost heights may climb;

Be powerful for a little time;
God won, perhaps, in history
And still by all detested be.The tyrant, worshipful of might,
Ceases to think of wrong and right.
By fear he rules his fellows here,
And hate walks side by side with fear.Such greatness always at the end
Will leave a man without a friend.The rule is old. They longest wear
Life's glories who are just and fair;
Who have power can still refuse
For selfish ends their power to use,
And only they are truly great.Who gain from life more love than hate.

EXCEPTIONS TO
44-HOUR WORK
WEEK PROPOSED

Harrisburg, Aug. 16 (AP).—Preparing to put the new 44-hour workmen's work week law into effect September 1, the state government will listen this week to recommendations that allowances be made for certain industries.

The industrial board will meet Wednesday and the Department of Labor and Industry said it would propose some exceptions.

The department said today the variations or special provisions will cover problems confronting some industries in complying either with the women's law or the general law which goes into effect December 1, a spokesman said. Such industries include those with continuous processes, service industries and those of a seasonal nature.

Approval of the recommendations by the industrial board will make them special provisions of the work law. Should the board reject the proposals, they will be turned back to the department for revision.

The department already has compiled recommendations of variations for the service industries, including the retail trades, hospitals, banks, hotels, restaurants, summer resorts, volunteer firemen, insurance agents and laundries.

Recommendations also are ready for submission for cleaning and dyeing establishments, fruit and produce merchants, bookbinders, newspapermen, farmers and packers, nurserymen, cannery and a few public utilities such as water works, telephone, telegraph, transportation and trucking companies.

The department conferred with both employers and employees in mapping the recommendations. Employers submitted their problems and suggested solutions while representatives of employees were consulted on the suggestions offered by the employers.

Members of the industrial board are Secretary of Labor and Industry Ralph M. Basehore, Chairman; Mrs. George B. Wood, of Wynnewood, near Philadelphia, who represents women and children; Morris Harrison, vice president of the Ham-merrill Paper company, of Erie, representing the employer; Herbert Sander, of Pittsburgh, representing the general public, and John A. Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who represents the employee.

The department spokesman said some of the state's industries may place all of their employees on an annual pay basis in an effort to solve the wage and hour problems. He said some industries had suggested averaging hours over a given period so that the average employment would not exceed the 44-hour maximum.

The department, he added, felt that such a plan might not be practical except where employees are engaged on an annual wage basis.

Secretary Basehore said employers favoring the annual wage system believed it would tend to stabilize employment, purchasing power and improve standards of labor. Basehore added that they also felt it would solve the general unrest between employer and employee, help to establish vacation periods for all workers and provide payment during periods of illness.

Basehore said virtually every employer who has contacted the department believes the 44-hour week is feasible and workable. He added that all employers also would pay time and one-half the usual hourly wage for all overtime found necessary in special cases.

Dies in Crash of
Plane He Built

York, Aug. 16 (AP).—A home made airplane cracked up here Sunday killing its pilot, William C. Winters, and seriously injuring a passenger, C. Leroy Shepp, 33. Both lived in West York.

The plane nose-dived near the baseball park in West York in a field adjoining Winters' home. His brother, Melville, who saw the fatal plunge, said apparently an obstruction developed in the fuel line.

The ship had just taken off and was only seventy feet in the air when it hurtled earthward, its nose plunging into the dirt, Melville said.

Spectators said they had to use saws and other tools to extricate Winters from the wreckage.

Winters had a student's license and hoped to get his regular pilot's license next Wednesday, Melville said.

Shepp is in a hospital in an unconscious condition.

The plane had been obtained second hand by the Winters brothers who rebuilt the machine.

LINDY'S SON 5 TODAY
Weald, Eng., Aug. 16 (AP).—Jon Lindbergh was five years old today at Long Barn, the rambling Kentish house where he lives with his father and his mother and his little brother. His father, however, was not at home, to help him celebrate.

He still was on the continent, presumably at or about Brittany's St. Gildas island with Dr. Alexis Carrel, the American scientist with whom Colonel Lindbergh designed an artificial heart. The colonel has been there much lately.

THE DARK SHIPS

By HULBERT FOOTNER

Chapter One

Lovers Quarrel Over A "Crook"

The two were walking fast up Charles street in Baltimore, not looking where they were going. It was the hour when the better shops closed, and everybody was bound homeward. Many people turned their heads to glance after the good-looking pair; the young man, tall, broad-shouldered, with curly black hair and a notable look of resolution in his dark eyes; the girl, tall also for her sex, brown-haired, peach-skinned, with that special quality of beauty that makes a man feel helpless. They were quarreling.

"He's old enough to be your father," said Nell.

"He's not!" retorted Janet. "He's only 30!"

"That's what he says!"

"You're just being hateful."

"You know nothing about this man."

"What does a girl know about any of the men she goes around with? He's an amusing companion. That's all that concerns me."

"You mean he spends his money on you?"

"I believe he's a crook."

"You have no reason to say such a thing. You're only jealous!"

"Jealous! Of that! If that's what you want . . ."

"I don't want him!"

"I say he's a crook! I can trust my hunches in such matters. That's my business."

"You have never seen him!"

"I'm judging just by what you have told me about him."

"You're jealous!" she said again.

"I'm not jealous; I'm sore!"

Janet laughed angrily. "What's the difference?"

"Plenty of difference. I'm not the jealous type. You and I can't be together much. Well, I don't expect you to sit home nights when I'm not here. I've always encouraged you to have a good time, and you know it!"

"Then what are you fussing about?"

"This guy Prescott Fanning sticks in my crop. He's not one of us. He's too old for you; he spends too much money; he's too slick!"

"Oh, for heaven's sake! People are always warning me against poor Prescott as if I were a school girl! I can take care of myself."

"Somebody else has warned you?" he asked quickly.

"He had no more to go on than you have."

"Who was it?"

"A lawyer here named Horace Kettering. A friend of my father's."

"What did he say?"

"Very much the same that you have said. When I planned him down, he hadn't anything definite against Prescott."

"Anyhow, I should think you would listen to a friend of your father's."

Janet did not answer.

"Put Yourself in My Place"

"Presently Nell said gloomily:

"Why do we have to quarrel?"

She looked away. She was softened, but she wouldn't let him see it.

"You started it."

"I'm sorry for some of the things I've said. . . . But you must admit that I've got reason to feel sore. Try to put yourself in my place. . . . Yesterday I made the biggest capture of the year in our department. I put Luciano Rosazzo behind the bars. You know who he is, the head of the narcotic ring in New York. He's the guy who poisons the young lads with his filthy snow; even high school children."

"Well, I felt pretty pleased with myself. I've been after him for nine months. And today when I came down to Washington to report, my chief slapped me on the back and promised to give me a district on January first. 'Son, you've earned a vacation,' he said. 'Take a week off and enjoy yourself. Go some place where you're not known, and lie low, because this Rosazzo guy has powerful friends who will be looking for you.'"

"So I came over to Baltimore to be with you. Riding the crest of the wave! Why, I haven't had a whole week at a time with you in two years. Gosh! Was I happy? And what did I find? That you had gone and got your head turned by this old guy, Fanning! Is it any wonder I'm sore?"

"Don't be absurd!" said Janet with fresh anger. "He isn't old, and I haven't got my head turned!"

"Don't you like me any more?" he asked diffidently.

"Oh, I suppose I do. But when you make me angry, how can I feel it? What kind of a life would we have together if we got married and you flew off the handle every time I spoke to another man?"

"I don't fly off the handle every time. It's only Fanning. He's a crook!"

"He isn't a crook! And I'm not going to let anybody talk to me like that! I left a good home and went to work and supported myself on my earnings so that I could be free and independent. If my people wish me to be on my own, I'm not going to let you dictate to me."

Nell looked at her long

Women Law-Makers Want Congress to Finish Job

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP).—Women law-makers said today they preferred remaining in the capital's heat to having Congress leave its job unfinished.

They recognized, however, the fact that early adjournment is certain by making plans for vacation activities that range from campaign speeches to foreign travel.

"I want to stay until we're finished," said Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat, Arkansas). "Then I want to drive through North Carolina on my way home to Jonesboro."

Representative Caroline O'Day (Democrat, New York) added:

"I'm anxious to stay here until we accomplish some things we set out to do however hot it gets."

When adjournment comes, she will motor through New York state as she has done for the last 14 years, holding meetings and talking to women. She also will spend some time in her New York city office as head of the women's division of the state Democratic committee.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican, Massachusetts) said she is just as busy at home as here, so that the time of adjournment isn't worrying her much.

"But I feel that some of the legislation we're discussing is too important to be dispatched hastily," she added.

Mrs. Rogers will follow her usual non-session custom of visiting 26 towns and cities in her district.

Rep. Virginia Jenckes (Democrat, Indiana) said she has stayed in the capital to take care of work in her office each of the four previous summers, with time out for a trip home to accumulate more business.

Representative Marty T. Norton (Democrat, New Jersey), chairman of the House labor committee, hopes to pass a few weeks on the New Jersey shore.

CENTURY-OLD JAIL GETS THIRD INMATE

Southampton, England (AP).—The old wooden door of Sark Island's two-cell jail has groaned open to admit the third prisoner in its history. The prisoner is a postman accused of stabbing his wife on the tiny Channel island between Guernsey and Jersey.

The British island, which was part of the old Dukedom of Normandy, has a population of 500. The first prisoner in the little stone bastille was a deserter, locked up "a long time ago."

The second was a woman incarcerated nine years ago for "a trifling offense." But her sobs were so loud the jailer released her within an hour. Thereafter she sat on the step of the cottage across the way chatting and knitting.

Complete electrification of farm homes on a one-year trial basis has been started in the French village of Hilaire-Sur-Heipe "to put wives on a 40-hour work week."

end, widow of Mr. Peter Arendt, of Franklin township, aged 73 years.

son of Mr. Conrad Wagoner, of Tyrone township, aged about 19 years.
His death was occasioned by a fall
from a horse, by which his skull was fractured.

On Wednesday, at the residence of Mr. Weldy, in Straban township, Henry Ogle, aged about 15 years. His death was occasioned by the kick of a horse on the morning of that day.

The U. S. frigate Independence, with Mr. Dallas, our minister to Russia, arrived in England on the 12th of June—where she would remain a few days before she proceeded to her destination.

Spring Wheat: Mr. David Ziegler, of this borough, has sowed two bushels of wheat in the spring and his yield has been sixty dozens of very fine wheat. He intends to reserve it for seed.

meeting of the Union Seminary and Hampton Temperance society, at the Union Seminary school house, on Temperance. John Tudor, Sec'y.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Democratic Ticket: The Democrats of this county met on Monday last and settled the following ticket:

can.

ilton township.

On the 24th inst., at the Lutheran parsonage, Arendtsville, by Rev. J.
K. Miller, Dr. E. W. Mumma to Miss
Sallie Wilson, both of Bendersville, Pa.

Postponed.—We are requested to state, that in consequence of the excitement of the public mind in regard to the war, the contemplated picnic at Bendersville fair grounds
has been indefinitely postponed.

Hon. E. McPherson Renominated:
It gives us great pleasure to announce that our talented young congressman has been unanimously renominated at the conference held on Thursday last, in Fulton county, for the district composed of the counties of Adams, Bedford, Franklin, Fulton and Somerset. This is a tribute to the talent, industry and high character of Mr. McPherson. This will give high satisfaction throughout the county, as he has earned a high reputation in the councils of the nation and our friends abroad

have been constantly urging upon us
his re-nomination to a position he so much deserves. It is done; and his triumphant election is certain. We congratulate him and his county on the result.

Shocking Accident.—Mr. Levi
Beard, of Franklin township met his death in a distressing manner on last Friday week. He was engaged in raking hay, and drove into a nest of hornets who immediately made an attack upon the horse. The animal became maddened with the stings, and in his efforts to extricate him from the gears, Mr. Beard was so severely kicked as to cause his death in twenty-four hours afterwards.

Died.—On Saturday last in this place, Mrs. Catharine Minnigh, wife of Mr. Ephraim H. Minnigh, aged 27 years and 13 days.

On Wednesday last, in Cumberland township, Mr. Samuel Linn, in his 64th year.

In Berlin, Ill., of diarrhoea, contracted in camp, Mr. David R. Scott, formerly of this county, a member of Company O, 6th Regt., Ill. Vol., aged about 24 years.

A Suspected Spy.—Some two or three weeks ago, a young man, a German, of rather genteel appearance, arrived here in the cars, and remained here a day or two. He had his head bandaged, his arm in a sling and walked with a crutch—all his injuries received in battle, and had just been released from Richmond, where he had been a prisoner.
He went to Emmitsburg, where he had friends, he said. We learned that some suspicious circumstances
in his conduct there led to his arrest, and it was found that he was not wounded at all, that all was a sham, and that a map of roads in Harbaugh's valley had been found on his person. He was held, therefore, as a spy. This is the version of the story as given to us. How much, if any, is true, we cannot say.

PRaise FOR RiP
TOP NOTCH, the rooster, was a little bit ashamed that it had been Rip who had discovered that Christopher Columbus Crow was the owner of the footprints. Christopher had been up to one of his old mischievous tricks again, and while he was sorry if he had caused any trouble, he was not sorry if he had caused any trouble.

It had been a prank indeed, for the Puddle Mudders had been worried, fearing there was a stranger around their parts. But Willy Nilly realized that the very odd appearance of the footprints had really kept him from worrying too much.
He had not thought that Christopher had had anything to do with all this, but he had not been able to understand how a child's footprints could prove dangerous—particularly a child who evidently was half-sliding along.

Top Notch was so pleased that it was Rip who had made the discovery rather than anyone else, that he invited Rip to come down to his General Store and have a bone that Rip had forgotten he had once left there. In fact everyone praised Rip.

"I do hope I didn't keep you from other work," cawed Christopher.
"It's all right," said Willy Nilly.
"I was good on the trip, wasn't I?"

"You were!" smiled Willy Nilly, as Christopher came over and gave the little man an affectionate peck with his beak.

"Oh, why must I be so wicked?"
"That is something even I can't answer," cackled Top Notch.

2D POST MORTEM
BABY EXPIRES

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Aug. 16 (AP)— Death triumphed over science
again today and Pennsylvania's second post-mortem baby died two hours after it was born.

A premature infant boy brought into life from Mrs. Beatrice F.
Sweet, 30, through a Caesarian operation one minute after the mother died, was lost just as surgeons hoped it had a chance.

Dr. William A. Weaver performed the operation.
The mother died of cerebrospinal fever. She was admitted to the hospital last week with only slight chances of recovery.

Last week tiny Frances Mary Bocassini, born in a similar operation, died in an incubator in a Philadelphia hospital.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

A LOVER OVER ALL

IT IS not easy to love everybody, nor is it easy to love all of anybody. But there is something lovable about every human being.
There is also more to love about most people than there is not to love.
A love over all, with a certain blindness to the faults or failings of one, is the most generous and wisest attitude to adopt. It makes one happier, at any rate, to hunt for the good in people and forget that there is bad implanted in them.

There are all sorts of hobbies that one can put his energies to, but none more profitable than the one of hunting for the things to love in any-other human being. Hunting for the faults may be easier with many of us, but it doesn't pay any dividends!

The scriptural admonition is to love one's neighbor as oneself. This is quite difficult, as many of us have learned by many an experience, nevertheless a love over all in such case brings its own rich reward.

A love that is over all smoothes most of the unpleasant in life, as well as in people. Those who are forever seeing the unhappy and unpleasant in others, are usually blind to the same failings in themselves.
Their love doesn't spread abroad because it is too heavily concentrated in thoughtlessness and selfishness. The pity is that such a state is so rarely apparent to such a one.

To cultivate a love over all is to build for happiness. It follows as the night the day.

We are each lucky human beings in many ways. If we could count up these ways often we would complain and criticize less. We would see a bigger and happier world about us—and a very beautiful one at that. We would see good in everything and in everybody. We would find the full meaning of this love over all.

FLAME TRAIL

Chapter 53
Confession

When Zeke Farley and his companions rounded a curve and came to the designated place, they stopped short with surprise at the sight of the extraordinary group waiting to receive them.

Stepping in front of the girls,
Ted told his story.
"I brought Josh Hastings along in the hopes he'd confess," he ended.
"But I reckon I can convince a jury without him."

A groan from Josh Hastings brought all eyes to him, as a convulsive shudder shook his frame,
and tiny flecks of foam appeared at his lips.

"He's had another stroke!" Kay exclaimed. "Quick! Get him off!"
In a thrice they had lifted him to the ground. Kay took sudden command of the situation, and motioned them all a few paces away as Josh Hastings' eyes opened. She kneelt beside him.

Just In Time
"You're going to die, Josh Hastings," she declared solemnly, her eyes holding him with hypnotic intensity, "and Ruth will be left all alone. If you will tell the truth about Scrap Johnson's death, I swear that I'll take care of her."

Josh Hastings' eyes wandered from Kay to Zeke Farley and Tom Runyon behind her, then to Ted. A sullen triumph gleamed through their glazed terror.
"I won't talk!" he declared, with sudden vindictive strength.
"Then Ruth must be alone in the world and fend for herself!" Kay's voice was inexorable and gave no quarter.

"Damn you! Have it your own way, then!" His eyes clouded as a convulsive tremor shook him. Kay beckoned Zeke Farley closer.

"Go on!"
I killed Scrap Johnson, because he pulled a dirty trick on me! Josh Hastings gasped out his confession.
"And I framed Gaynor because I hate him, and I intended to have him prove a murderer to you. And what's more, I burned your ranch house, because . . ." His face contracted in a horrible grimace, and he fell back.

Zeke Farley sprang to him, and put a hand on his heart. After a moment of breathless silence, he turned to Kay.
"You were just in time," he announced. "He's dead."

With an inarticulate cry, Kay rose to her feet and flung herself into Ted's arms.

Tom Runyon, who had been watching the whole dramatic scene from a distance, swung into his saddle. He silently pushed past the group on the trail, and without a backward look, headed down for Clear Water Basin. For a long moment, his horse's hoof beats were the only sounds to break the silence.

Sunrise
With sudden radiance, the first rays of the sun caught the tops of the peaks, announcing the arrival of a new day. To the southeast,
a heavy cloud of smoke smothered
the ridges, but above and ahead of them,
all was clear.

"That is the past and the future!"
Marion spoke in an awed whisper, as she looked from the obscurity of the eastern ridges to the bright promise of the western peaks, towering above them.

Kay raised her head from Ted's shoulder, but before following Marion's look her eyes anxiously sought Zeke Farley. He nodded a sympathetic assent to her unspoken question.

"He's free, all right!" He motioned his men to take Josh Hastings' body and go ahead. A grin of satisfaction spread over his face
as Kay slipped her hand through Ted's arm and faced him with radiantly happy eyes.

"How about coming back with me?"
He cocked a quizzical eye at Marion. "I'll send up a couple of cayuses for those two. I reckon they won't mind waiting!"

"I'd love to! I want to go back as soon as possible." Marion eagerly accepted his suggestion, and before Kay or Ted could remonstrate, she kissed her hand to them and
sprang up before Zeke Farley.

A moment later, and they had followed the rest around a bend
in the trail, leaving Kay and Ted alone with the sunrise.

"Sweetheart!" Ted held Kay away for a moment, as he gazed at the bright glory of her hair in the morning sunlight that now included them
in its golden radiance.

"Marion is right! The future is ours!"
He pulled her gently to him, and for a breathless interval, future and past were forgotten in the magic
of the present.

HOME COOKING

"Some day," said she, "when you can be
Once more the man who married
me;

When you have tired of evil men,
You may come back to me again.
And thus they parted. She to shift
As best she could and he to drift.

Five years went by. A warden had
A trusty, not considered bad;
Caught with some others forced to roam

A thousand miles or more from home,
And jailed for having pried ajar
The doorway of a railroad car.

Paroled at last he came to town,
Found work and here he settled down.
And two years more went by as he
Labored and waited patiently
And then at dinner (truth I write)
He said: "The soup is good tonight!"

On came the meat. "It's years,"
said he,
"Since food has seemed so good to me!"

Smacking his lips he gave a cry:
"Oh, this is home-made apple pie!"
And then he heard the woman say:
"A new cook came to work today."

"Perhaps, since food like this appeals,
She'd like to hear you praise her meals.

Step to the kitchen door and say
How much you've liked her work today."

And out he went. (How strange is life!)
There in the kitchen stood his wife!

THE ANCIENT RULE
The rule is old but still it stays
The one achievement mortals
praise:

For others round about to do
What you would have them do for you.

In this way always humans claim
A happy and an honored name.

Nor art, nor strength, nor skill bestow
The love such gracious persons
know;

Men to the topmost heights may climb;
Be powerful for a little time;
God won, perhaps, in history
And still by all detested be.

The tyrant, worshipful of might,
Ceases to think of wrong and right.
By fear he rules his fellows here,
And hate walks side by side with fear.

Such greatness always at the end
Will leave a man without a friend.

The rule is old. They longest wear
Life's glories who are just and fair;
Who have power can still refuse
For selfish ends their power to use,
And only they are truly great.
Who gain from life more love than hate.

EXCEPTIONS TO 44-HOUR WORK
WEEK PROPOSED

Harrisburg, Aug. 16 (AP).—Preparing to put the new 44-hour workmen's work week into effect September 1, the state government will listen this week to recommendations that allowances be made for certain industries.

The industrial board will meet
Wednesday and the Department of Labor and Industry said it would propose some exceptions.

The department said today the variations or special provisions will cover problems confronting some industries in complying either with the women's law or the general law which goes into effect December 1, a spokesman said. Such industries include those with continuous processes, service industries and those of a seasonal nature.

Approval of the recommendations
by the industrial board will make them special provisions of the work law. Should the board reject the proposals, they will be turned back to the department for revision.

The department already has compiled recommendations of variations
for the service industries, including
the retail trades, hospitals, banks,
hotels, restaurants, summer resorts,
volunteer firemen, insurance agents
and laundries.

Recommendations also are ready for submission for cleaning and dyeing establishments, fruit and produce merchants, bookbinders, newspapers, farmers and packers, nurserymen, cannerymen and a few public utilities such as water works, telephone, telegraph, transportation and trucking companies.

The department conferred with both employers and employees in mapping the recommendations.
Employers submitted their problems and suggested solutions while representatives of employees were consulted on the suggestions offered by the employers.

Members of the industrial board
are Secretary of Labor and Industry
Ralph M. Basehor, Chairman;
Mrs. George B. Wood, of Wynne-wood, near Philadelphia, who represents women and children; Morris Harrison, vice president of the Ham-merrill Paper company, of Erie, representing the employer; Herbert Sander, of Pittsburgh, representing the general public, and John A.
Phillips, president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who represents the employee.

The department spokesman said
some of the state's industries may place all of their employees on an annual pay basis in an effort to solve the wage and hour problems.
He said some industries had suggested averaging hours over a given period so that the average employment would not exceed the 44-hour maximum.

The department, he added, felt that such a plan might not be practical except where employees are engaged on an annual wage basis.

Secretary Basehor said employees
favoring the annual wage system believed it would tend to stabilize employment, purchasing power and improve standards of labor. Base-hor added that they also felt it would solve the general unrest between employer and employee, help to establish vacation periods for all workers and provide payment during periods of illness.

Basehor said virtually every employer who has contacted the department believes the 44-hour week is feasible and workable. He added that all employers also would pay time and one-half the usual hourly wage for all overtime found necessary in special cases.

Dies in Crash of
Plane He Built

York, Aug. 16 (AP)—A home made airplane cracked up here Sunday killing its pilot, William C. Winters, and seriously injuring a passenger,
C. Leroy Shepp, 33. Both lived in West York.

The plane nose-dived near the baseball park in West York in a field adjoining Winters' home. His brother, Melville, who saw the fatal
plunge, said apparently an obstruction developed in the fuel line.

The ship had just taken off and was only seventy feet in the air
when it hurtled earthward, its nose
ploughing into the dirt, Melville
said.

Spectators said they had to use saws and other tools to extricate
Winters from the wreckage.

Winters had a student's license and hoped to get his regular pilot's license next Wednesday, Melville
said.

Shepp is in a hospital in an unconscious condition.

The plane had been obtained second hand by the Winters brothers, who rebuilt the machine.

LINDY'S SON 5 TODAY
Weald, Eng., Aug. 16 (AP)—Jon
Lindbergh was five years old today
at Long Barn, the rambling Kentish house where he lives with his father and his mother and his little brother. His father, however, was not at home, to help him celebrate.

He still was on the continent, presumably at or about Brittany's St.
Gildas island with Dr. Alexis Carrel, the American scientist with whom Colonel Lindbergh designed an artificial heart. The colonel has been there much lately.

THE DARK SHIPS

By HULBERT FOOTNER

Chapter One
Lovers Quarrel Over A "Crook"

The two were walking fast up Charles street in Baltimore, not looking where they were going. It was the hour when the better shops closed, and everybody was bound homeward. Many people turned their heads to glance after the good-looking pair; the young man, tall, broad-shouldered, with curly black hair and a notable look of resolution in his dark eyes; the girl,
tall also for her sex, brown-haired,
peach-skinned, with that special quality of beauty that makes a man feel helpless. They were quarreling.

"He's old enough to be your father," said Neil.

"He's not!" retorted Janet. "He's only 30!"

"That's what he says!"
"You're just being hateful."
"You know nothing about this man."

"What does a girl know about any of the men she goes around with? He's an amusing companion. That's all that concerns me."
"You mean he spends his money
on you."

"I believe he's a crook."
"You have no reason to say such a thing. You're only jealous!"
"Jealous! Of that! If that's what you want . . ."

"I don't want him!"
"I say he's a crook! I can trust my hunches in such matters. That's my business."

"You have never seen him!"
"I'm judging just by what you have told me about him."

"You're jealous!" she said again.
"I'm not jealous; I'm sore!"
Janet laughed angrily. "What's the difference?"

"Plenty of difference. I'm not the jealous type. You and I can't be together much. Well, I don't expect you to sit home nights when I'm not here. I've always encouraged you to have a good time, and you know it!"

"Then what are you fussing about?"
"This guy Prescott Fanning sticks in my crop. He's not one of us. He's too old for you; he spends too much money; he's too slick!"

"Oh, for heaven's sake! People are always warning me against poor Prescott as if I were a school girl! I can take care of myself."

Women Law-Makers Want Congress to Finish Job

Washington, Aug. 16 (AP).—Women law-makers said today they preferred remaining in the capital's heat to having Congress leave its job unfinished.

They recognized, however, the fact that early adjournment is certain in making plans for vacation activities that range from campaign speeches to foreign travel.

"I want to stay until we're finished," said Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat, Arkansas). "Then I want to drive through North Carolina on my way home to Jonesboro."

Representative Caroline O'Day (Democrat, New York) added: "I'm anxious to stay here until we accomplish some things we set out to do however hot it gets."

When adjournment comes, she will motor through New York state as she has done for the last 14 years, holding meetings and talking to women. She also will spend some time in her New York city office as head of the women's division of the state Democratic committee.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (Republican, Massachusetts) said she is just as busy at home as here, so that the time of adjournment isn't worrying her much.

"But I feel that some of the legislation we're discussing is too important to be dispatched hastily," she added.

Mrs. Rogers will follow her usual non-session custom of visiting 26 towns and cities in her district.

Rep. Virginia Jenckes (Democrat, Indiana) said she has stayed in the capital to take care of work in her office each of the four previous summers, with time out for a trip home to accumulate more business.

Representative Marty T. Norton (Democrat, New Jersey), chairman of the House labor committee, hopes to pass a few weeks on the New Jersey shore.

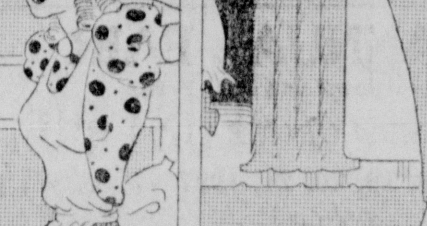

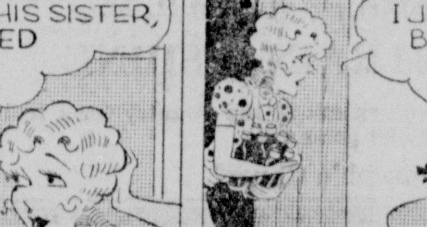

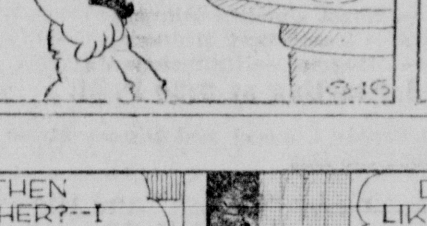

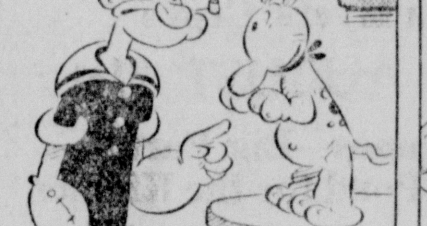

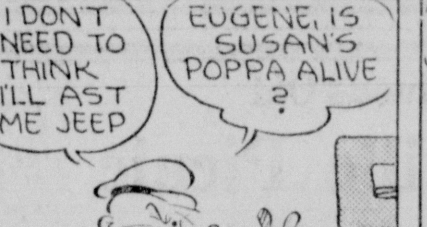

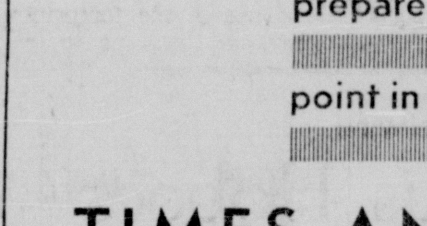

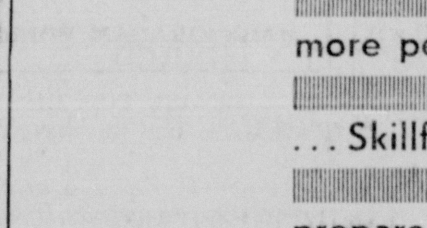

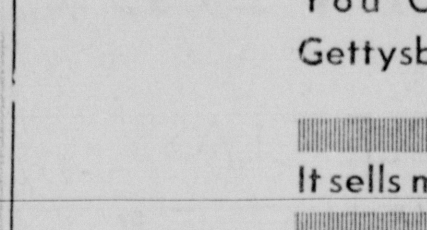

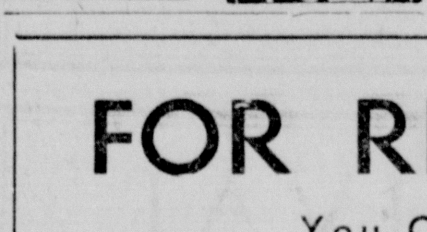

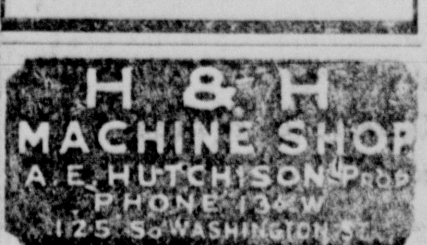

cused of stabbing his wife on the tiny Channel Island between Guernsey and Jersey.

The British island, which was part of the old Dukedom of Normandy, has a population of 500. The first prisoner in the little stone bastille was a deserter, locked up "a long time ago."

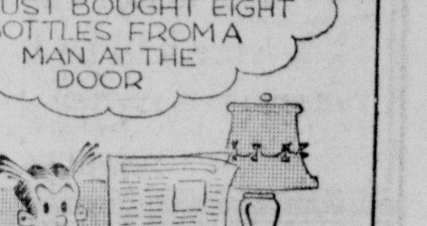

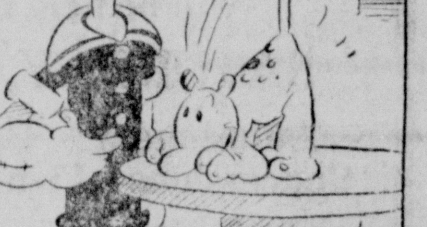

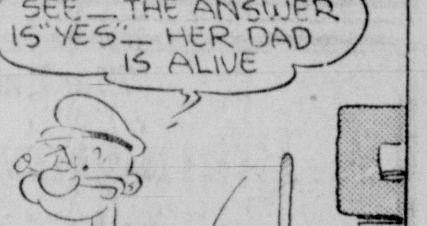

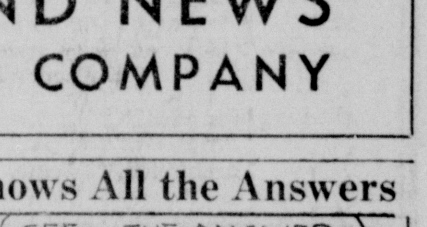

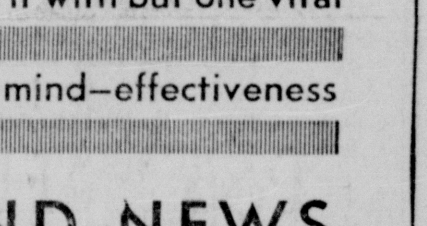

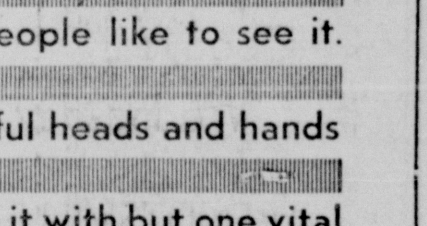

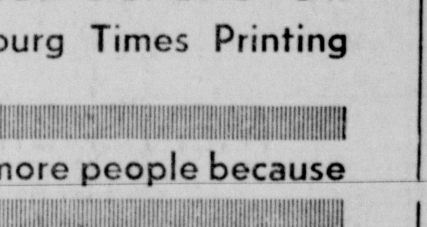

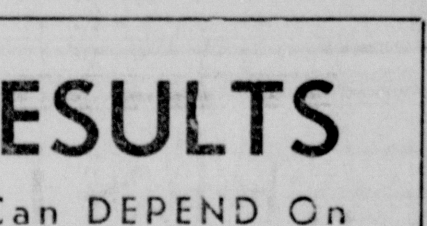

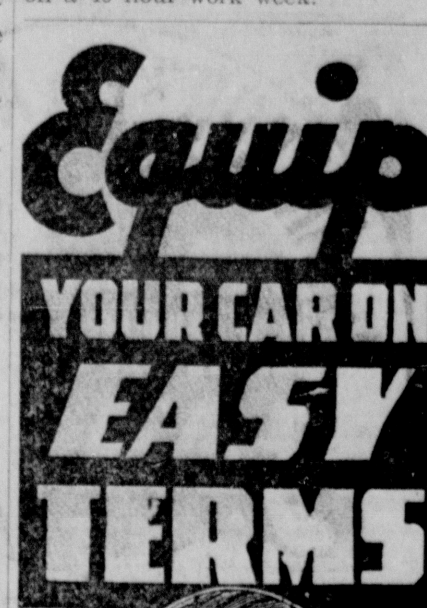

The second was a woman incarcerated nine years ago for "a trifling offense." But her sobs were so loud the jailer released her within an hour. Thereafter she sat on the step of the cottage across the way chatting and knitting.

MAGICIANS MEET

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 16 (AP).—
Amateur magicians from Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, New Jersey and the District of Columbia, met to prove the hand still is quicker than the eye. A few professionals attended, but the meeting Sunday was primarily for those who take no money—except from hats, sleeves or somebody's nose.

Argentina is primarily an agricultural country, importing 75 per cent of the manufactured products it uses.
